

NERUPI Update

March 2022

What are T Levels?

- Post 16 technical study programmes that sit alongside apprenticeships and A levels, designed to support progression into employment, apprenticeships or further study.
- Developed in partnership with government, business and education, with contracts managed by IfATE. The T Level is certificated by IfATE.
- Focus on developing skills within 15 industry routes. 11 of which will have a T Level, with a total of 24 Technical Qualifications.
- First three pathways commenced September 2020, with full roll-out of all 25 TQs expected September 2023.
- The TQ Outline Content is based on apprenticeship standards, created by T Level panels to set out the knowledge and skills required.
- AOs use the Outline Content and Ofqual conditions to design the TQ specification and assessments.

The DfE timeline for roll-out

T Levels and the Technical Qualification

- The T Level is made up of several components:
 - Technical Qualification
 - 315-hour (minimum) Industry Placement
 - Industry qualifications (where applicable)
- 1800 hours over two years (with flexibility)
- Students will need to achieve all components to achieve their T level certificate from IfATE.
- The Technical Qualification will be developed and delivered by a single AO and is regulated by Ofqual.
- Pearson currently deliver the following TQs:
 - Design, Surveying and Planning for Construction (First teach: 2020)
 - Digital Production, Design and Development (First teach: 2020)
 - Accounting (First teach: 2022)
 - Finance (First teach: 2022)
 - Legal Services (First teach: 2023)

Industry Placement

Essential part of T Levels managed by the DfE

- Minimum, 315 hours of placement within an industry environment that's linked to the occupational specialism or T Level route.
- Designed to build 'threshold' competence so learners can start full time employment in their chosen occupational sector.
- 25 hours of 'tasters' into an occupational specialism.
- Students can be placed with up to a maximum of 2 employers.
- SEND learners can have 105 hours in a placement at the providers on site facilities.
- For the most up to date information about industry placement requirements please visit the DfE website.

T Level Certificates

Students who pass all the elements of their T Level will get a nationally recognised certificate (issued by the Education and Skills Funding Agency) showing an overall grade of pass, merit, distinction, or distinction*

It will also set out the details of what students have achieved on their course including:

- The grade for the core component, (A* to E).
- The grade for the occupational specialism, shown as Pass, Merit or Distinction.
- Details of the industry placement.

Please note - Pearson will not be issuing T Level certificates or Technical Qualification certificates.
