STRENGTHEN INSTITUTIONS

Diverse, civil society, allies in market and state

MAKE CHANGE

Socio-economic, balance of power, culture

We focus on:

POWER

We build the relational power needed to win real change and we innovate for impact.

PEOPLE

We make sure that our members and those experiencing injustice act for themselves and have real power and agency in what we do.

PARTNERSHIPS

We work in diverse alliances and partnerships for the common good which bring our member institutions into accountable relationships with private and public sector institutions.

PARTICIPATION

We support people to participate in public life in a non-partisan way.

We are:

Institutions

Chapters and alliances

Living Wage Foundation

PACT

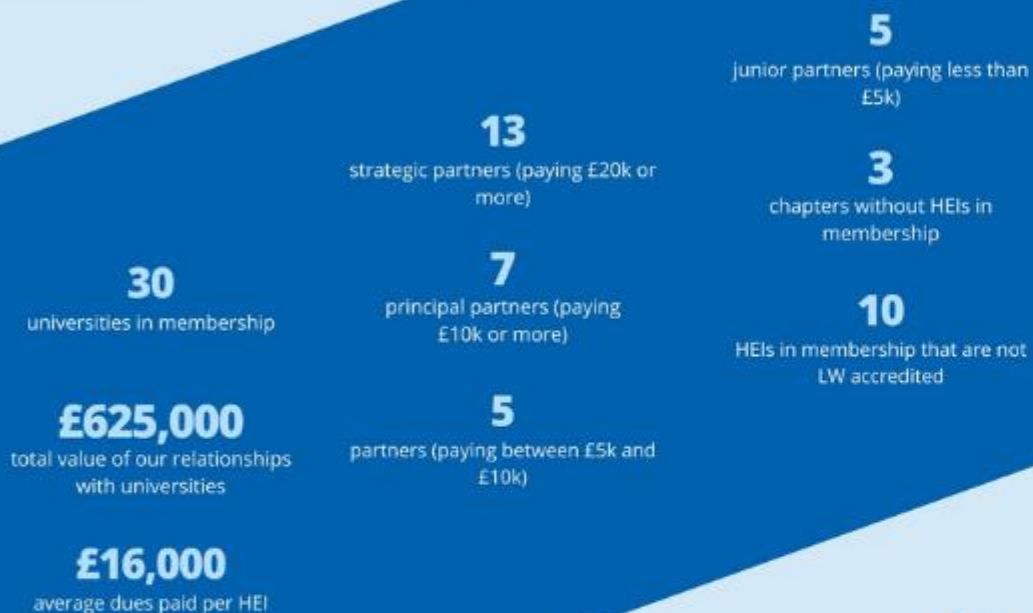

Together We Can

THE WORLD AS IT IS

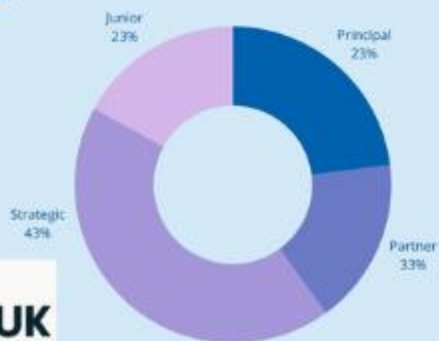

Imbalance of power between civil society, market and state. Social and economic injustice including structural racism and oppression. Social division and polarisation.

Power, agency and voice

Training was useful as it opened my eyes about power, and that I can do stuff, and I was holding myself back... I only realised [the benefits] when I started working on the project (SAB3)

People feel empowered if they feel like they are being heard. SAB, our voice is being heard (SAB2)

Seen, heard and valued

it feels like a safe space, I feel like I belong, and I can say anything... it felt like I mattered (SAB3)

Over the 9 months I've been here at Newcastle University, I've seen preferential treatment of white students... the student advisory board gave me a space to share this, express this and unburden... a space to express myself safely in an environment where I could share ideas and I felt listened to. The best part of meetings was being given a fair chance to talk, it wasn't intimidating (SAB8) feeling . sense of responsibility to make change . feeling more included in the university but I guess that comes as an older student too that you feel like you want to but don't know how to . so this is a good medium to get involved in wanting to make change (SAB 2)

Practical exercise 1 - building student voice

Elmwood University has identified a persistent degree awarding gap, where Black, Asian, and other minoritised students are consistently achieving lower degree classifications compared to their peers. This disparity is concerning as it reflects deeper systemic issues and has implications for students' progression. The university leadership decide to set up a steering group to propose interventions to tackle the degree awarding gap and address these inequities. The leadership meet to discuss who they should include as part of this steering group. The leadership also raise concerns about challenges the steering group may face, including resistance to change, and differing perspectives on the causes and solutions for these gaps.

In your groups:

- Who should be invited on to this steering group?
- Who can help support and drive change across the institution?
- What barriers and challenges might the group experience? Who can help overcome them?
- How will the group identify interventions? Who can help implement them?
- How will change be evaluated?
- Who will evaluate?

Practical exercise 2 - building relationships with the community

Using one of the headlines, or your own issue

- Do a Power Analysis for your context that will move you towards this vision (10 mins)
 - what's your (not your organisation) self interest in this?
- Reflect on your Power Analysis - what do you notice? (5 mins)
- Prompts:
 - Who don't you currently have relationships with?
 - Who do you need to do one-to-ones with?
 - How can you support the local community to build their power?
 - What do you need to change organisationally for this to happen?
- Discuss your reflections in pairs (10 mins)
