Previous work into ambassadors & Rationale for this project

- Ylonen (2010) suggests there are "underlying tensions and potential sources of conflict within that role [student ambassadors]"
    - Selection criteria
    - Image of the 'ideal SA'
    - Training
    - Impact
  - Research into ambassadors tends to be 'in-house' or case-study (including my own)
  - Literature produced is largely 'grey'- used only for internal purposes rather than sharing with other organisations
  - Little sector-wide academic research to concurrently compare how multiple institutions use ambassadors

The questionnaire

- Questionnaire split into five areas of interest:
    1. Organisation of ambassadors (12 items)
    2. Recruitment and selection of ambassadors (9 items)
    3. Training of ambassadors (8 items)
    4. Working practices of ambassadors (11 items)
    5. Evaluation of ambassadors (7 items)
  - Pilot questionnaire distributed to colleagues at Bath Spa and University of Suffolk
  - Main questionnaire distributed via the NERUPI mailing list
  - Analysis conducted in SPSS v.26

  - How often and how much are ambassadors used?
  - Ambassador pay?
    - Other rewards?

Section 1: Organisation of ambassadors- How many ambassadors?

- Pilot questionnaire showed how organisations tend to have a ‘core’ ambassador programme and other departments would likely have more ad hoc ambassadors throughout their organisation
  - Outreach departments have an average of 170 ambassadors (range: 10-650)
  - Average number of ambassadors across whole organisation: 282
  - Evidently dependent on size of organisation (larger universities tend to have bigger ambassador pools)

Section 1: Organisation of ambassadors- Ambassador hours?

- Although some universities have large ambassador pools, are they all used? How much work do each of them get?
  - Average number of ambassador hours used across organisations per year: 60,794 (n= 8)
  - Respondents struggled to answer this question, many skipped it
  - Future iterations of questionnaire will need this question re-wording (suggestions welcome!)

Section 1: Organisation of ambassadors- How much are ambassadors paid?

- One respondent indicated they used unpaid volunteers as ambassadors
  - Average hourly rate: £9.90/hour
  - Range: £7.89/hour - £12.35/hour
  - Some respondents noted a tiered system in their organisation, with a base-pay and higher pay for 'senior/advanced ambassadors' with additional training or experience
  - Many London respondents indicated they weighted their tended to pay to reflect the cost associated with living in London.

Which NERUPI aims do ambassadors support most?

Overall, which NERUPI aims do you think ambassadors support most (please rank using number 1-5, with 1 being 'support most' and 5 being 'support least')?

N.b. lowest mean rank = highest support score

Concluding thoughts

- Rate of pay is encouraging- organisations appear to value the work of ambassadors and reward them accordingly
  - Some universities have large ambassador 'pools', but current research does not show how frequently they are used
    - Is having more ambassadors more useful than a few, reliable, highly trained ones?
  - Training does not cover pedagogy, despite ambassadors working on various attainment raising programmes (which require effective curriculum delivery)
  - This could be remedied by engaging academic staff or teachers who have expertise in teaching & learning

Concluding thoughts (2)

- Primary schools and FE colleges are not being provisioned (as much)
  - Ambassadors are perceived to have the most impact in developing students' knowledge and awareness in HE (NERUPI aim: 'Know')
  - Future areas for research
    - Capture more of the sector (non-respondents and non-NERUPI members)
    - Analysis of ambassador JDs
    - Analysis of APPs
    - Ongoing tracking- repeat data collection process in future to monitor any changes in working practices
    - Explore the effectiveness of ambassador training further
